

Alberta public statutes exist in revisions of the statutes, the latest being Revised Statutes of Alberta, 2000 (R.S.A. 2000), in annual volumes of the statutes and in paper copies (printed after Royal Assent and before the annual volume). The Revised Statutes of Alberta (R.S.A. 2000 Looseleaf ed.) offers a convenient consolidation of statutes that is updated twice a year, but it is not considered an “official” version for citation to the Courts. Alberta statute research may be conducted electronically or in print.

Statutes are cited by the short title, in italics, followed by R.S.A. (Revised Statutes of Alberta) or S.A. (Statutes of Alberta), then the year, then the designated chapter number, e.g. Limitations Act, R.S.A. 2000, c. L-12. Revised statutes and all new statutes are cited by an alpha-numeric chapter number, e.g. R.S.A. 2000, c. L-21 or S.A. 2005, c. A-1.5. Amending statutes are cited by a numerical chapter number, e.g. S.A. 2005, c. 34.

New statutes and amendments to existing statutes are introduced as bills in the Legislative Assembly and may come into force when receiving Royal Assent. Alternatively, there may be a “coming into force” provision at the end of the statute which specifies a date or the statute may come into force on proclamation given by the Lieutenant Governor of Alberta. Once in force, existing statutes may be repealed by the Legislative Assembly.

Bills

Table of public statutes

Amendments to statutes are identified by consulting the “pink pages” in the latest bound annual volume or in the last volume of the Revised Statutes of Alberta (R.S.A. 2000 Looseleaf ed.). The Table lists amendments to the latest R.S.A. by statute and section. “Proc.” indicates that the statute or amendments are not yet proclaimed, and so not in force, as of the date of the Table. Currency information is clearly given at the beginning of the “pink pages”.

history

Table of Concordance

Schedule D, in the last volume of the Revised Statutes of Alberta (R.S.A. 2000 Looseleaf ed.), is a chart that shows where previous legislation may be found in the new revision. You can trace the legislative history of a statute using the history notes found at the end of each section of revised or consolidated statutes. The history notes indicate previous sources for the current text.
